FILMS ON FARMER COOPERATIVES

These 16 mm. films are available from the sources indicated.

An "A" for the BC Way (color, sound, 22 min.)

Produced by the Banks for Cooperatives, Farm Credit Administration. The story of modern farmer cooperatives, told in an interesting, easy-to-understand manner. A Future Farmers of America student presents a term report to his highly critical social science class, covering the "what" and "why" of farmer cooperatives -- as the script observes, "from minks to mushrooms to radish seeds." And, as the title of the film implies, he gets an excellent mark for his efforts. Released 1966.¹

Farmer Cooperatives Today (color, sound, 20 min.)

Produced by Farmer Cooperative Service. This film tells what farmer cooperatives are, the jobs their members call on them to do, and how they do them. Outlines types of cooperatives farmers have set up and the kinds of business services they perform. Released 1956.²

Handling Livestock Safely (color, sound, 10 min.)

Produced by Farmer Cooperative Service. Shows how safe handling of livestock in feedlots, stockyards, and in transit can reduce livestock losses from bruising and other injuries. Released 1965.²

It's the Farmer's Business (color, sound, 14 1/2 min.)

Produced by Farmer Cooperative Service and the Banks for Cooperatives. This movie shows how farmers use cooperative businesses to get quality products to consumers and shows some well-known co-op brands; it pictures how cooperative supplies and services help farmers produce more efficiently; and it relates how the Banks for Cooperatives and Farm Credit Administration have helped. The film was part of the USDA centennial movie series. Released 1962.^{1 2}

Plant for the Future (color, sound, 11 min.)

Produced by Farmer Cooperative Service and the Office of Rural Areas Development. Through the eyes of the editor of the local newspaper, this film tells how a group of growers in the Morrison's Cove area of Pennsylvania formed a cooperative to grade and pack fresh apples for today's demanding markets. It was financed by grower investments, and loans from local people, area banks, local and State industrial development authorities, and the Area Development Administration of the U.S. Department of Commerce. USDA's RAD program also helped the cooperative get started. Released 1963.²

The Rural Co-op (black and white, sound, 20 min.)

Produced by the Civil Affairs Division, Department of the Army, to tell Germans, Austrians, and Japanese about American farmer cooperatives. Bears credit line of Farm Credit Administration which distributes it in the United States through special arrangement with the producer. An old film which does an excellent job of showing step by step how farmers organized cooperatives to solve problems in one community. Released 1945.¹

This Is Livestock Pooling (color, sound, approx. 5 min.)

Produced by Farmer Cooperative Service. Explains how livestock pooling is carried on at markets. It also points out its most important advantages for producer, market agency, and buyer. Released 1965.²
